

mairtean

Thirteen floors to the dollhouse of the mice thirteen mice writhing on the floors thirteen mice standing in the hallways, watching thirteen years when I felt the hard bosom of Francis S. thirteen blocks from my house that park where I stabbed the hard hot upthrust palms of my hands their butts, into her hard brassiered chest thirteen the year I was not bar mitzvahed thirteen inches long, a line of all my teeth that itched set back to back against my itching palms against my itching penis thirteen fucks at the funeral of my childhood on the cold steps thirteen teeth on one side of my zipper twelve teeth on the other as many inches as it was then parting one side from the other leering out into the mouth of her, 36 years old in a black bra like a new banana gone to the forest of the rivers to the sea thirteen cents the busfare I ride home my grin the thirteenth storey of the bus I ride home of thirteen the extra one thrown in by the baker. thirteen, the one not of the dozen ever-Is that thirteenth.

(with apologies to Ginsberg.

letters from home said girls were throwing themselves off cliffs (no fathers)

a Montreal trick to secure alimoney (no cliffs) anyhow, I don't open my mail these days.

the slugs have overgrown my last address the hornets have grown lazy and fall asleep in an old tin can.

Outside my Big Sur shack an old fat 2-sheepdog listens to the suck of the ocean a thousand feet below the dirt road to the currents.red, green black and unbelievably sweet, I wander through the low bushes, picking them, reciting han shan. Somewheres far off a schoolbus coughs and whines, will not be fixed the nearest neighbors five mile down the road an old general store serves me as a postoffice where

I open circulars that have come to people who have dies happily where I am standing now.

another phoney poem. may 16, Vancouver.

the things I have failed at the wind tonite thru the trees
the sound of it in this rm/
areas of being spaces
I cld/ have moved in met people
been friends only now
seeing things

clearly

a go back to star gazing

walking on beaches seashells a single sea gull the smell of seaweed

there is emen there the need to commune even tho alone.

the single dark sky separations of stars from stars comets from meteors the big bang theory & continental drift we taureans know the feel of the earth we lie down on the grass & feel a rock under the head as a pillow it is a good rock you can't offend it o happy rock you make friends with that rock fr/ a second think of taking it home & then reconsider leave it there & when you leave / your eyes are moist at this departure human society offers nothing this rock grows smaller behind you it offers only its silent goodbye goodbye you have not failed it you have for a moment dreamt on its warm surface it now lies there in the sunlite it will never forget you presence I promise you

> (we shid/ just let the poem grow

let the mind grow be passively aware of its movement but watching

as it flowers

sitting on a park bench beneath some trees for shade

a woman comes into the park in her bikini spreads a blanket on the grass & lies down

& in another park 10 years later

the percy walters park

I am eating lunch there are people lying on the grass enjoying the last days of sun

there is a poem for each month of the year there is a poem for each wk/ & day for each hr/ & second

all time expands into a flower & then dies

we left the hospital walking down to ste catherine str she talkt continously fr/ blocks

a few days before I had gone with you to the hospital you cried when I left

I went home holding back my tears all the way & as soon as I got in the door cried uncontrollably for hours

we mustnt/ leave each other we must stop while we have the chance we must stop killing each other we must

while we can learn to speak

let the words & feelings be flowers

so that they can die & we can die too die so that we can live be silent so that we can listen

walking along the beach in ventura the pier running out into the pacific ocean islands off the shore farther south south of ensenada the beach was miles of sand kingfishers running out with the tide of waves sand dollars found on the beach piles of heavy white shells

a conch with its spiral shape

e to be alone

by the ocean

to stand by the shore
the sand hot
beneath oness feet

& watch the waves the ocean the moon

the constant expansion & contraction lie down on the beach & watch the clouds forming on the horizon forming into a whiteness over yr/ head

the seaspray becomes a drop of rain the poem becomes a written thing april / 77.

TWO POEMS FOR OPAL, IN PARTING

FIRST POEM

Hywe sleeness lassy me nighsome
witful greement onings
Un-deprived mwucke pillou
ancyroid Hywe drealened Strang drealens.

Part 2: Greenable Onionys

Ia-sleeper lastage nightbird
withal greenable onionys
Under-mya pillow-bere
and-Ia dreamered
Strangeful dreamers.

THE SECOND POEM

FAY WRAY

for Opal L. Nations

Ope fazart labarde native-born wreakless
Faze labarinth natively wreaks opeidoscope
Opalesce fayalite la national wrayer
Lab nationalist wreak opaquely fayre
Kyth fawning oozily wrathli natheless
Wreakful ope fayver labant native
Opah wraxle natiform kyx faxed
Fazle labba nativity wreathen open Nationalness wreade opalotype fayllard laan
Ootype wrathfully naterelle kyt fawnery
Wrathfulness nates kyte fawney oouen
Opely fazendeiro labascency nativist wreathed

He goes into the college of self,

out of the crazy house & into the fire of understanding.

I dream of this, sitting in this chair,

for the moment fully asleep yet thinking of him.

There are the translations not keeping out the rain.

It begins falling, breaking the tension of the air.

Big drops fall, glass bottles breaking against the sidewalk. A smattering of raindrops leave me listening to silence,

thinking of him.

The labours and leisures of a wex cadet

- for Jos Rosemblatto

牵

To work in circles or segments of circles appears most compatible with animal machaniams acted upon by instinct. The same is true of bees; they envision a fish-eye lens perspective of the world dotted with aerodromes, where, to begin their reconnaissance, they must first formalize a way home around a certain distance mapped as a perimeter of visibility, one which is totally in accord with the reserve of fuel in their tanks. At a certain distance from base, Charlie Ome (our hero) cuts his engine and falls into a space, like a stone into a pool. Charlie One hovers at a prescribed point and sends out a single wave or ripple of current, about whose rin he now proceeds to navigate. Like a surfer, Charlie One rides upon the crest until the eddy levels out. At this point Charlie One cusses, he is distressed as always by the eddy's sudden placidity. Charlie scowla and in a frenzy dashes madly on a parallel plane, distancing six equal sided hexagonal points in the air, Charlie's six corners or boundaries of the known, from which he strains his eyes and by a droning enquires after the ripple's sudden disappearance, As usual, no reply. Hopelessness gathers in Charlie's mind, he turns for home, the pivot of his lifoo

Once home, Charlie proceeds to work on a large hanger-dormitory, a solid mass of war rented for the season.

The first cell Charlie makes is cylindrical; he works alone, unhampered by a personal sense of trowded space. The scoop will have a hollow circular bottom, like the hollow of a cup. Soon Charlie One begins to skim the rim like a rider on the Wall of Death, faster and faster, in a blurr he can see his friends and companions gathered around the edge, they peer over at him, gasping for breath, living in their minds Charlie's own excitement, their hearts race, their wings grip tightly, some try to imitate the daredsvil by taking to the air above, defining circuits for themselves; others look up and with a squeak of wing motion laugh at this second rate sideshow performance.

000

With the first cell excavated, two more laborers will be required to work alongside Charlie One. A test of wits in the form of a simple collorary geometrical problem is put to the assembled body by Charlie One himself. Finding a smooth area of wax and lowering his sting, Charlie One engraves a circle a quarter inch in circumference, inside which he draws one vertical line dividing the circle into two equal helves (line F to E). Then he draws a horizontal line, cutting through the circle across the lower third of its total circumference (line B to C), followed by a line which cuts again a third the total circumference on the left side of the circle, in other words, line A to E. He then draws a line joining A to C.

With a drone Charlie One outlines the problem as follows.

"At the point where A.E. crosses B.C. we shall call U; at the point where F.E. crosses B.C. we shall call M; let us then call the diameter E.M.F., that which passes through E meeting with the chord B.C. in M of the given situation, so that from the two equiangular right triangles E.U.M. & E.F.A. we have E.F.: E.U. = E.A. : E.M. Now if we write E.F. = 2R, E.M. = M, E.U. = X, E.A. = X+T, how do we write the proportion?"

"2 R.M. = X (X+t) !" drone Billy 42, Harry 64, Ernest 15, George 11, Sidney 3, Stanley 20 and Harold 47 & 48 in unison.

The eight finalists are caked to draw stemens (the two drawing the longest lengths will be the winn-ers).

George 11 and Marcid 47 are the lucky ones. George is assigned to the front of Charlie and Harold to Charlie's right hand side. As they work together, each to his own circular excavation, their bodies touch at certain places, certain high points of contact, the locations as precise as those of acupuncture, but these tiny contact points enhance sensual feelings, a shared stimulation, feelings to which every bee willingly surrenders. So well do they give themselves over to it, in fact, that the worker ceases to channel the perfect circle, the habitual program is erased; and in its place another task program takes control. The laborers will instead turn at six specific points, six equally distant bexagonal points, where at regular intervals, when each brushes by the other in body encounter, an overwhelming pleasure is jointly experienced, best described as feelings of homosoxual voluptuousness.

Soon more and more will join the encounter group and in an orgy of delight sweet suites of apartments will be made for the swarm, the queen, the kitchen and household staff.

路 路 斯

KEW NORRIS

SOME NOTES FOR A REVIEW OF THE DADA SHOW

If Emmy Hemmings had really looked like that I'd be on a plane, on my way to the cemetary to dig her up.

They performed the real Dada pieces like 15 beavers pissing out of unison, but with smaller teeth.

At one point in the show the ghost of Tristan Tzara shamelessly leaned across my table & pointed out that the play was so bad he felt as though he was being fucked in the ass by the Pope. Hans Arp, recking of cologne, at Tzara's right shoulder, farted loudly & wildly clapped for the baby.

Drummer Boy Raga went up 10%,

It warm't bad enough or good enough (traded). Trara threw confetti when he should have been throwing money. Very bourgeois.

Mistory is a dead hobbyhorse with two broken legs, the left front & right hind; The Dada Shew was dead history.

It weren't no Powerhouse. Not Mary Tyler Moore but Maude.

Someone said there were only two people in the cast who knew anything about Dada. Which two? They all acted equally ignorant.

Bed wine

Viable alternatives for Canada? Lambert at Dorion Suits,

True Dada produces riots, fucking in the streets, a handbill stuck in the torch hand of the Statue of Liberty. I got a headache. The shills in the audience were the best actors & they stunk. Janco was sufficiently disgusting for I second, but it was the wrong one.

The end result: my repatriation to the cause. Not to Dada but to the spirit of Dada. Surrealism was last year's passing fancy. The continuing spirit of Dada calls for shitting on the actors, blowing out the candles, dropping little children out of third story windows, tattooing a loved one with a blowtorch.

May 2, 77

Do Not Be Afraid Of Death By Drowning

a poem

The deceased had the inclination to go for long walks at a time. He did not postificate, speculate, inculcate or discriminate. I hold here his autograph. Notice how the letters tend to droop.

T. Komyves

Weon-Dadaist View "The Dada Show" by Paul Ledoux

by Tom Konyves

What was dada in "The Dada Show"? Nothing, What was not dada? Dada. May 1st. 1977. Powerbouse, Gallery, Students unite; Paul Ledan is here with a history lesson. The lesson is this: Jack pays $2,50 for admission to "The Dada Show". A beer is 75¢, How many beers does it take before Jack says "It's good;"? Answer: If they all had capes, and moved to performance from TAWTFP (the area with the four posts) to the stairs, it might emit emit haust fumes!

People planted in the audience do not grow.

Ken liked the Emmy Hennings songs.

There wideo twice - which pretended. A film (and I choke on the word knowing how unavailable funds are for the making of film. Wouldn't we do it?) A waste is more like it. Darlene G. Loves Tony H.

The performance was as far from Dada us Dada is from Mary Tyler Moore.

ed according to yell- my nickname, Dada." audience or too much it's note on the stage.

They didn't get thred for trying Dada. I, on the other head, to use an expression. a talt to the second syllable)once, after it was all over, clearly. like launching a ship of a word, and a gorgeous tall lithe redhead turned around and said, "Did you, oo say, odada?" I said "Yes, why?" (which is my code for Roembzonabluoxfidamsof) She said, "Were you. calling me? You see. my name is Linda, and I can t remember the The actors audition- last time someone used ing ability. They were So there you have it. never too much in the If you want it. If not,

Paul Ledoux, playwright, producer, led the cheering, supported mainly by the plants Dada objects? As foreign as chinese coins, Were we expecting too much? Were we too much, expecting?

The piano player composed music, a Mickey Mouse thems but not as absurd, The great innovation(grande innova) was the makeshift Cafe Voltaire, and we could emoke! (Artie squirms.)

Ken and I, the poets reps. agreed the poems were read

by the actors,

We looked forward to the simultaneous poem "LBadmiral cherche un maison a louer", only to discover there was no mule, no sighs,

Andre would have said "bush (but I heard he saw the show and liked it, so, like druss, I guess it depends who you do it with.)

History? Do it justice. The calibre was ,22,

To call the show a farce would be giving credit where no credit's due, It was, .. a misnomer.

It's not even like the remaking of King Kong.

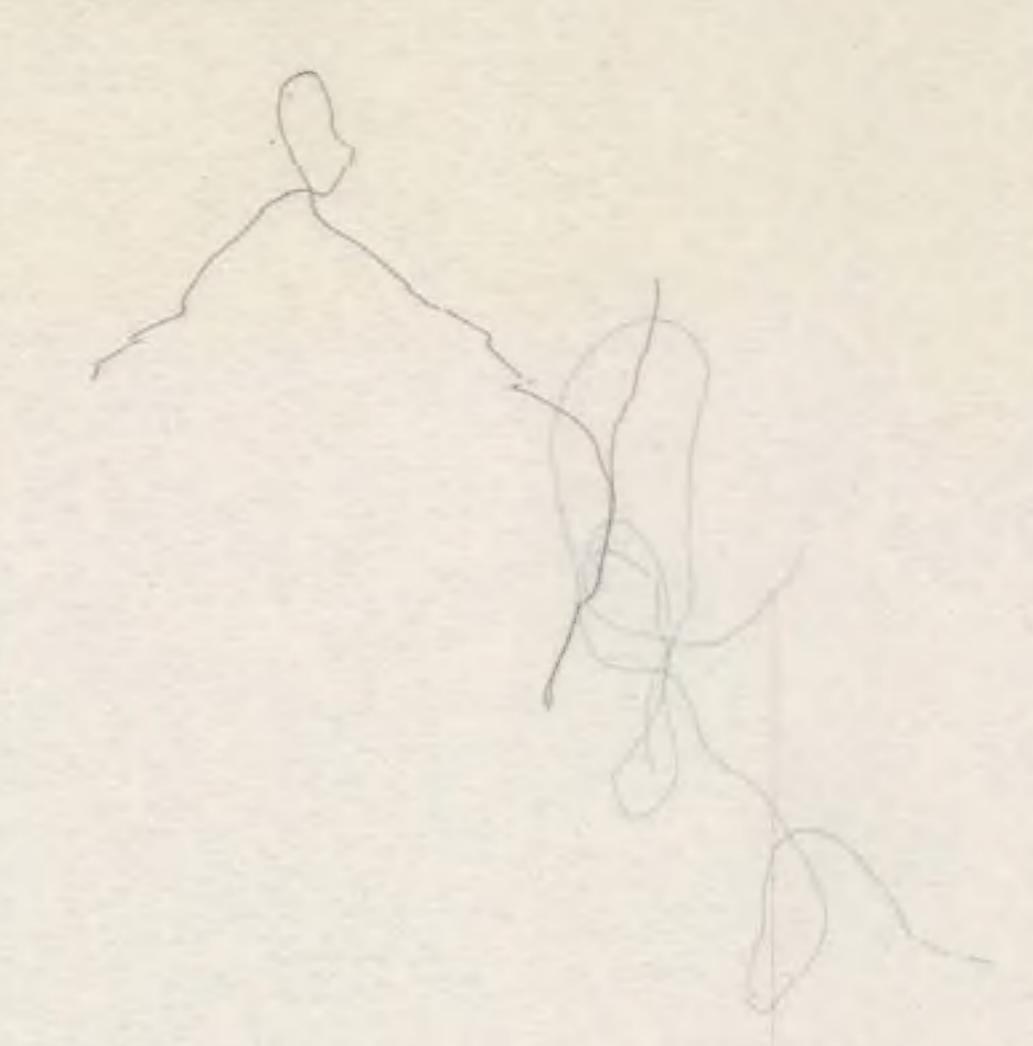

Essentially, the skin of Dads was slightly blemished by these people at Powerhouse, no more no less. I hesitate to call it "spirit", for these people don't know the meaning of the wurd. (sic)

I am no Dada. I pawned the word for Hobbyhorse in which I found(ed) Hh. That's all. Dadas a stepping-stone for

Is now at your Dookstone!

Ken Norms, Artie Gold, Stephen Morrissey, Opal L. Nations, Andre Farkes, T. Rommers, 2017 Mary Helfi, Steven Sky

KENORRIS

The SICK GREEN ONIONS

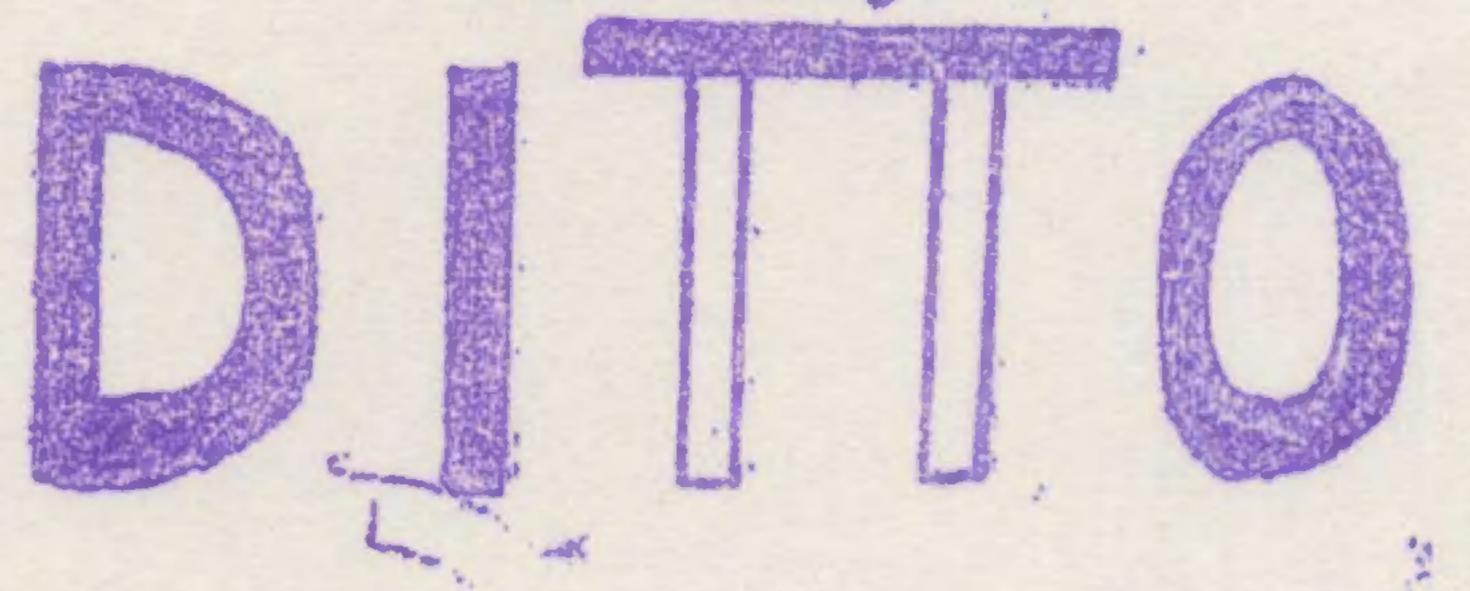

O GREEN ONIONS, thou art sick! The invisible worm That flies in the night, In the howling storm,

Has found out the bed Of verdant joy, And his dark secret love Does thy dreams destroy. and now or o

a poum

by the one...

and only.

6-249-7- "

REMOVE EISSUE BEFORE I